Abstract

Leonard Beetstra, Agriculture in Illinois, AI-A-L-2007-034

Biographical Information & Synopsis: Leonard Beetstra was born in 1925 in Harvard, Illinois of Dutch parents, and grew up on his father's dairy farm in rural Harvard, in northern Illinois. After serving in World War II, he returned to Harvard, working for a short while as a carpenter before returning to agriculture. He went into buying and selling cattle, and later went back to farming, operating a dairy and grain operation. Today, he and his children continue to farm in the Harvard area. Among other subjects, he discussed his philosophy of farming, the changes he has seen in farming over the last sixty years, and consolidation of the Harvard School District in late 1940s. He has also been active in the community, serving on the Board of Directors at the Harvard State Bank, and helping with "Milk Days" in Harvard.

Topics Covered: Dairy farming in Illinois; buying and selling livestock; rural school consolidation; changes in farming; Harvard, Illinois State Bank; Harvard Milk Days

Note to the Reader: Readers of the oral history memoir should bear in mind that this is a transcript of the spoken word, and that the interviewer, interviewee and editor sought to preserve the informal, conversational style that is inherent in such historical sources. The Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library is not responsible for the factual accuracy of the memoir, nor for the views expressed therein. We leave these for the reader to judge.
